their operations against Bulgaria.

The Times correspondent in Belgrade writes the news that King Milan's not. The business must be an exceedingly profitable one, owing to the great fall in the price of sheep since last year. It is the great trade of the future in this country.

In spite of the activity in production, the rise in the rate of exchange and of the prospects of the new year, the premium on gold has risen very high during the fortnight, reaching a maximum slightly over 50 o/o.

An unbridled speculation rages on Change where a few large dealers are operating for a rise in view of the very small stock of specie in the market.

There is, however, a weaker tendency in the speculation and the probabilities are that the premium will decline to 30 or 35 o/o as we enter the New Year.

There is very great distress in the future, and many think that gold will rule higher than over next year, in spite of the loan; they have their arguments on the reluctance of the Government to cut down expenditure and on the fear that the country must needs be plunged by the eventualities of the presidential contest. This distress is the basis of the market and prevents a rapid fall in the gold premium.

In view of the uncertainty of the situation, small and heavy capitalists are getting rid of their paper money by considerable investments in real estate.

This species of liquidation is putting a strong broom into the land market, and is now affecting all paper stocks.

Cedulas look shaky, but holders still cling to the stock, as to sell at present rates what they paid for in gold would be ruinous. There is, however, no longer any room for any further issue of cedulas, and the contemplated fresh issues will probably not be carried out.

One of the State banks is launching into a policy of paper restriction, for what reason nobody can guess. It is gradually withdrawing its paper, a rather slow process necessarily, but full allowance must be made for a State bank, and its circulation by the end of the year will be only half what it was three months ago. It would be folly to suppose that this is an attempt to return to specie payments on its part, but the fact stands and is much excited.
